CONTENTS

What is in this review

We studied the room as measured, solved the two walls that were working against it, and dressed it seven ways — so the choice in front of you is a confident one.

AT A GLANCE

A cinema that is also the best room for an evening in.

1 Close the face

Walnut slats run straight across the two windows over the fireplace, lit from behind by one warm LED band. The openings stop reading as eyes; light still glows through the gaps.

2 Frame the fire

A floor-to-window stone slab (Option A) makes the fireplace the room's one feature. Option B runs the slats to the firebox for a quieter, lower-cost wall.

3 Let the alcove disappear

Walnut slats behind the 85″ TV, a 110″ drop-down screen in the bulkhead, and a 6500K bias light that only comes on with the picture.

3. Approve samples: pewter weave, oatmeal linen-look, charcoal rug, slab.
4. Book the trades: electrician, millwork, slab fabricator, AV.

THE ROOM AS MEASURED

Nineteen feet of room, two moods

A cinema facing the TV alcove and a lounge facing the fire share one 19′-0″ room. Everything here is drawn from your measurements.

Fireplace wall to exterior wall	19′-0″
Stair-side line to TV wall	15′-5″
… to the alcove notch, exterior side	10′-10″
Fireplace wall length	10′-11″
… to the face of the steel-beam bump	9′-11″
Fireplace nook	3′-9″
Landing at the foot of the stairs	3′-11″
Tip of the stairs to the exterior wall	11′-6″
TV alcove, wide · TV wall	10′-9″ · 7′-0″
Alcove bulkhead · lounge bulkhead (W200 beam)	7′-8″ · 7′-10″
Ceiling	9′-0″
Windows over the fireplace (already cut)	2 × 42″ × 10″, sill 6′-8″

Givens. The two windows over the fireplace are already cut and stay. The W200 steel beam over the lounge sets a 7′-10″ bulkhead; the alcove bulkhead sits at 7′-8″.

Circulation. The stairs land into the room. Between the lounge chairs and the end of the sectional the layout keeps 30½″ to 34″ clear, depending on the chairs (34″ with the Cinema Edit swivels).

DESIGN PRINCIPLES

Four rules for the room

01

One warm material story

Walnut, warm stone, wool and linen, a little brass. Every light source is 2700K except the screen's own bias light.

02

Dark where the screen looks

What faces the screen goes darker and matte — sectional, rug, console — so films keep their blacks and the room doesn't glow back at the picture.

03

Two rooms in one

A cinema that faces the alcove and a lounge that faces the fire. Swivel chairs turn between them; five lighting scenes switch the mood.

04

Calm the walls

The fireplace wall and the TV wall each become one composed surface in the same walnut, instead of a collection of openings.

PART ONE

I Architecture & light

Two walls, one screen and five lighting scenes: the moves that make the room work before a single piece of furniture arrives.

01 · THE FIREPLACE WALL

Two eyes and a mouth

Two equal windows centred over a wide, low fire read as a face. Because the windows are already cut, the fix is not to move them but to stop them reading as openings.

Running the walnut slats straight across both windows, with one warm LED band behind them, turns two dark rectangles into a single lit stripe inside the slat wall. The glass stays; from the room you see a glow through the gaps, not two holes.

With the face gone, the question becomes how to frame the fire itself — with a stone slab (Option A) or with the slats alone (Option B).

Windows over the fireplace	2 × 42″ × 10″
Between the windows · sill	6″ · 6′-8″
Fireplace opening · bottom	52″ × 22″ · 2′-6″
Wall, length × height to bulkhead	10′-11″ × 7′-10″

AS BUILT Painted wall, two windows, the fire.

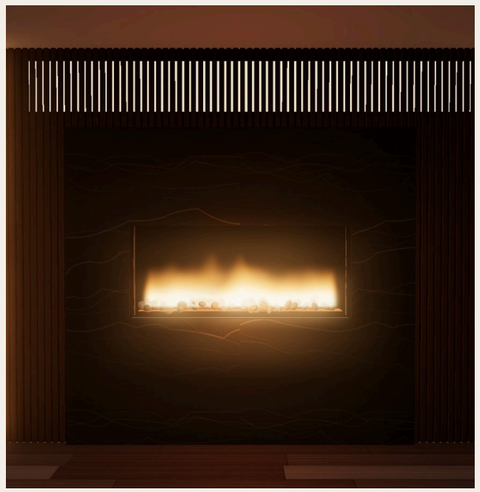

ORIGINAL SCHEME Slats around the windows: the face is framed, not fixed.

PROPOSED Slats run across both windows; one lit band.

A1 Evening scene: fire on, LED band at full, pots at 35%.

A2 Fireside: the band and the fire carry the room.

A3 Bright: true colours of slab, slats and walls.

A4 In context, from the bar corner.

OPTION A

Slats across the windows, stone slab

A tall honed slab wraps the fire from the floor to just under the windows. The slats stop at its edges, so the wall reads as walnut, one stone panel, and a band of light.

- Slab 6′-10″ wide × 6′-3″ high (82″ × 75″): 15″ past the firebox each side, floor to 5″ under the windows.
- Black marble-look porcelain or natural stone, honed. A polished face would mirror the lamp and the TV.
- Fabrication: a standard 63″ × 126″ porcelain slab needs one seam here — book-match it on the fire’s centreline. A natural slab at least 76″ tall can do it in one piece.
- Slats to the 7′-10″ bulkhead and across both windows, 2700K LED band behind the window section, vertical LED channels at both ends.
- Confirm the fireplace maker’s clearances to the walnut beside the slab before ordering.

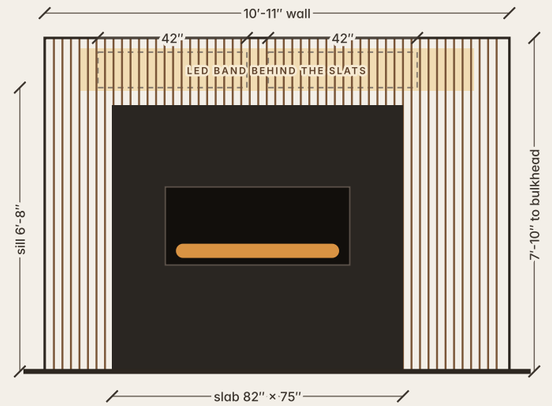

WHY

- The fire becomes the one feature
- Stone gives the eye a resting place between busy slats
- The most “finished” wall of the two

WATCH

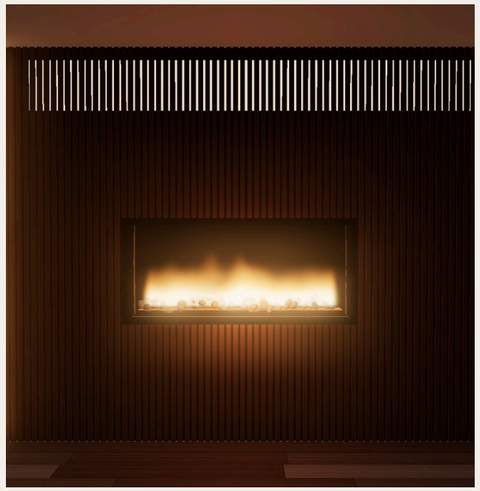

- Highest cost and the longest path: template, fabricate, install
- Heavy: confirm fixing to the wall and the floor
- Must be decided before the slats are made

ELEVATION · OPTION A

B1 Evening scene: fire on, LED band at full, pots at 35%.

B2 Fireside: the band and the fire carry the room.

B3 Bright: true colours of the slats, the trim and the walls.

B4 In context, from the bar corner.

OPTION B

Slats across the windows, no slab

The slats run continuously to a slim reveal around the firebox. The wall becomes one walnut surface with a band of light and a line of fire.

- Slats run to a 1½″ reveal around the firebox; a black metal trim (most inserts offer one) finishes the opening.
- Same LED band across the windows and the same vertical channels at both ends as Option A.
- The full wall is one trade (millwork): simpler to coordinate, quicker to finish.
- Confirm the fireplace maker’s clearances to combustible trim; some inserts need a non-combustible strip around the opening.

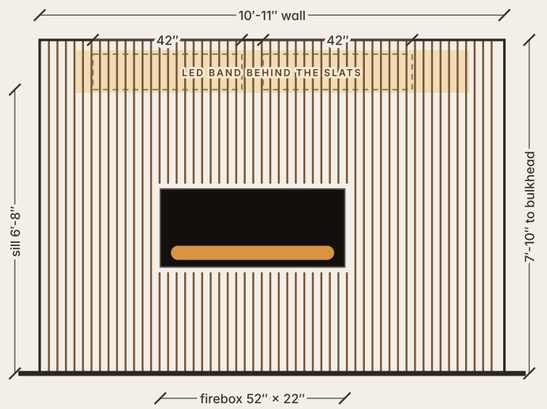

WHY

- Quieter, all-timber wall
- Lower cost and faster
- The slat rhythm wraps the fire

WATCH

- The firebox reads as a cut-out rather than a feature
- Busier around the fire at eye level
- Walnut close to the opening: clearances rule

ELEVATION · OPTION B

02 · OPTION A OR OPTION B

Same slats, different fire

A Stone slab: the fire sits in one calm panel.

B Slats only: one continuous walnut wall.

	Option A · Stone slab	Option B · Slats only
THE LOOK	Hotel lounge: fire framed in stone	Quiet and warm: walnut throughout
TRADES	Millwork + slab fabricator	Millwork only
TIME ON SITE	Longer: slab templated after the insert is in	Shorter
UPKEEP	Porcelain wipes clean; natural stone needs sealing once a year	Dust the slats
COST	Higher (slab and fabrication)	Lower
OUR VIEW	Recommended for a screening room and lounge	The right call if time or budget is tight

> Decide before the slats are made: in A they stop at the slab; in B they run to the firebox. Either way, the window treatment is identical.

03 · THE TV WALL

The alcove, in walnut

Slats behind the TV carry the fireplace wall's material into the alcove, so the two walls read as a pair and the TV sits in a warm, textured field instead of on a flat wall.

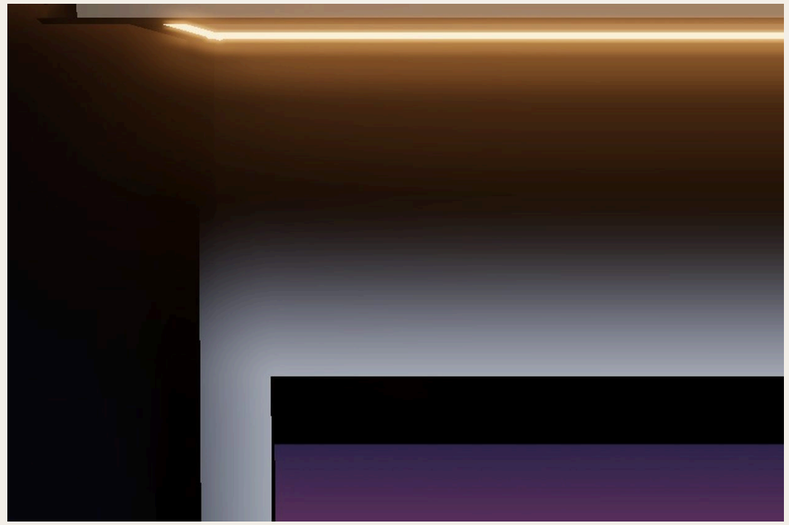

- Walnut slats on black felt across the 7′-0″ TV wall, floor to the 7′-8″ bulkhead (about 54 sq ft).
- 85″ TV centred at 46″; blocking and a cable chase behind the slats before they go up.
- 6500K bias light behind the TV, on only with the picture (Game night and Movie).
- The bulkhead cove grazes the slats from above; there are no downlights in the alcove, so it drops back into shadow when the TV is off and the fire leads.

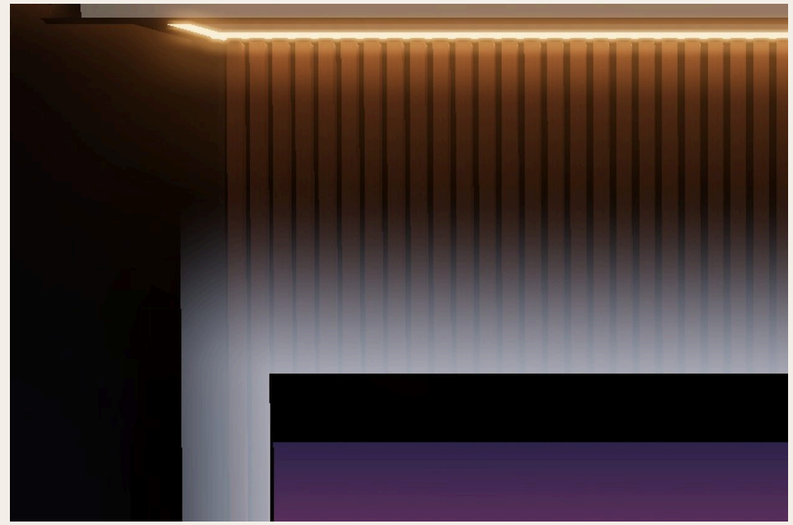

BEFORE A flat painted wall: the bias light is all that holds the TV.

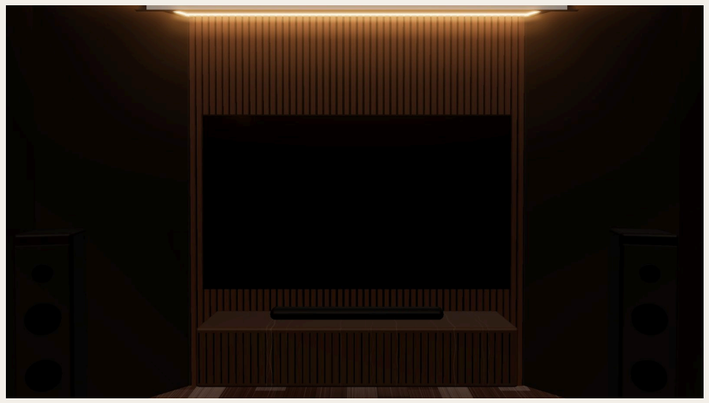

AFTER Walnut slats: the picture floats in a warm, ribbed field.

DETAIL · BEFORE Light falls flat on paint.

DETAIL · AFTER The cove and the bias light rake across every slat.

TV OFF Evening: the alcove recedes; the cove draws a line of light.

MOVIE The 110″ screen drops from the bulkhead, 9″ in front of the TV.

GAME NIGHT The 85″ TV with its bias light, screen rolled up.

04 · THE SCREEN

From the best seat

13′-5″	from the prime seat on the sectional to the TV
26°	of view filled by the 85″ TV — right for sport and games
35°	filled by the 110″ screen — in the 30–40° range cinema standards aim for

The TV stays the everyday screen; the drop-down screen and a ceiling projector make Movie night an event. Both sit centred on the prime seat, so nobody watches at an angle.

05 · FIVE LIGHTING SCENES

One room, five moods

One keypad at the foot of the stairs. Every source is warm 2700K and dimmable; only the bias light behind the TV is 6500K, so whites on screen stay true.

EVENING The default: coves full, pots low, fire and lamp on.

BRIGHT Cleaning, games tables, homework

FIRESIDE A drink by the fire, music

GAME NIGHT Sport, games, the TV with friends

MOVIE Films on the 110″ screen

Movie	0%	18%	—	—	6500K	On	Down	Films on the 110″ screen

06 · SOUND

5.1.2, wired before the slats

Speaker positions follow Dolby's angles from the prime seat. All of it is pre-wire: it has to happen before the slat walls and the slab go up.

L	Front left	tower or in-wall
C	Centre	under the screen
R	Front right	tower or in-wall
SW	Subwoofer	floor, front corner
SR	Surround right	exterior wall, 2 ft above ears
SL	Surround left	in-ceiling, angled (no wall there)

Also before close-up: a 2″ conduit with HDMI 2.1 from the console to the projector and TV, power and a 12 V trigger for the screen motor in the bulkhead, and the LED drivers in an accessible spot.

Six curated sets and our Cinema Edit, shown in the same room, from the same cameras, under the same light — so the furniture is the only thing that changes.

THE COLLECTIONS AT A GLANCE

Seven ways to dress the room

01 Warm Modern

Walnut, soft taupe and ivory bouclé: the current plan.

72/100 $11.4k–$20.8k 13 wk

02 Mid-century Modern

Walnut on tapered legs, rust tweed, mustard and teal.

65/100 $12.4k–$23.0k 14 wk

03 Japandi

Low and calm: oatmeal linen, white oak, jute and paper light.

67/100 $9.4k–$17.9k 11 wk

04 Industrial Loft

Cognac leather, black steel, reclaimed timber and a vintage rug.

63/100 $13.3k–$25.4k 17 wk

05 Luxe Lounge

Forest velvet, travertine and brass: a members'-club screening room.

70/100 $13.6k–$25.6k 16 wk

06 Performance Theatre

Graphite performance fabric, power recline and matte black: built for films.

77/100 $12.4k–$23.0k 12 wk

07 Warm Modern · Cinema Edit RECOMMENDED

Our recommendation: Warm Modern re-covered for the screen — pewter performance weave, oatmeal swivels, a charcoal rug.

78/100 $11.4k–$21.0k 13 wk

Score out of 100 with balanced priorities (method in the appendix). Budget is the indicative furniture total for this layout in CAD. Weeks is the longest made-to-order lead time.

Every collection is shown with the proposed architecture: slats across the windows, the stone slab, and slats behind the TV.

STRENGTHS

- Highest balanced score of the seven
- Darker sectional and rug keep the picture punchy
- Performance fabric on every seat used daily
- Swivel chairs turn from the fire to the screen

WATCH-OUTS

- Pewter reads cooler than taupe: keep walnut and brass close by
- Bouclé poufs still want gentle care
- The sectional sets the pace: about 13 weeks

1 2 3 4 5 1 WEAK — 5 STRONG

How to read it. Darker cells score higher. The four columns on the right re-weight the same scores: Balanced is our default; Cinema first leans on comfort, picture and acoustics; Hangout first on flexibility and care; Budget first on cost and speed. The best total in each column is underlined.

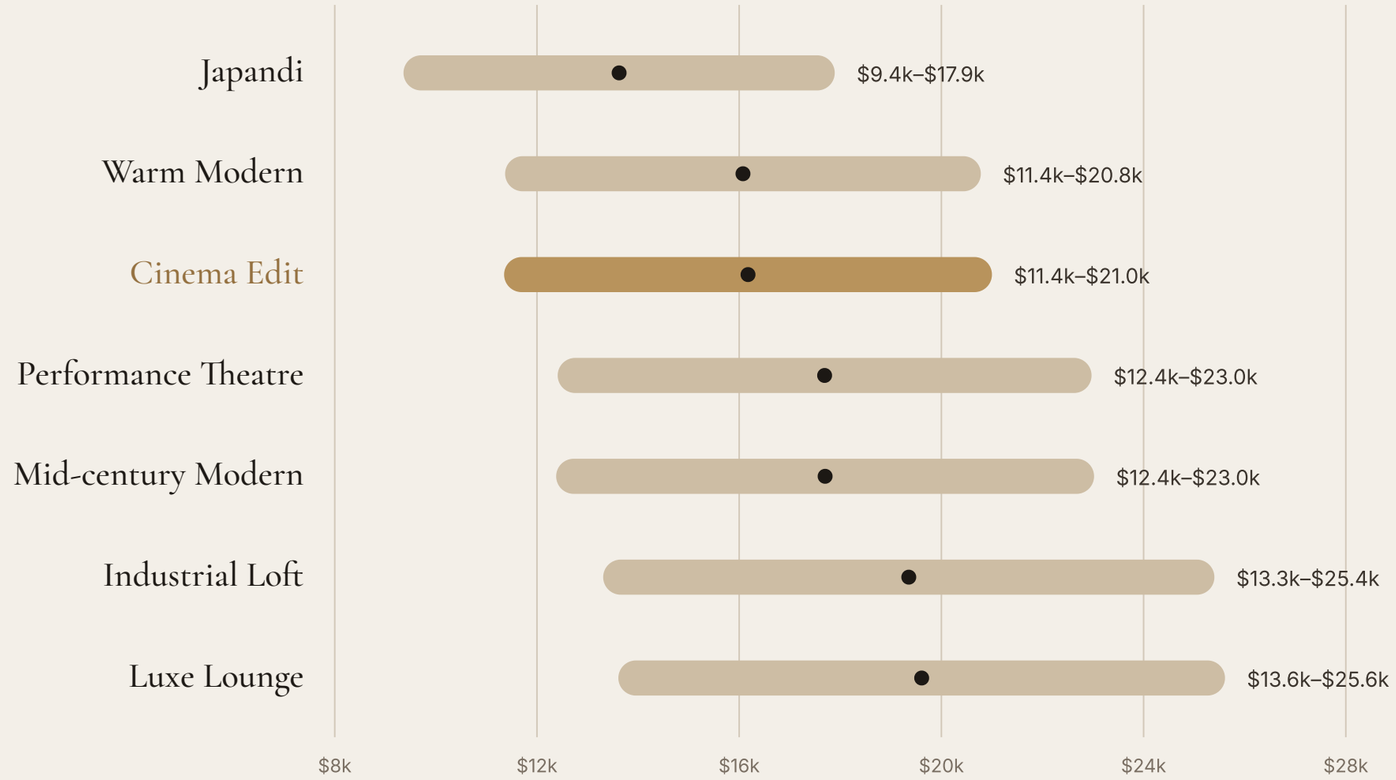

What it says. Performance Theatre leads on comfort, picture and care, and wins when films come first. The Cinema Edit leads on fit with the room (5 against 3), hangout flexibility and budget — and with balanced priorities that adds up to the highest total.

09 · BUDGET & LEAD TIME

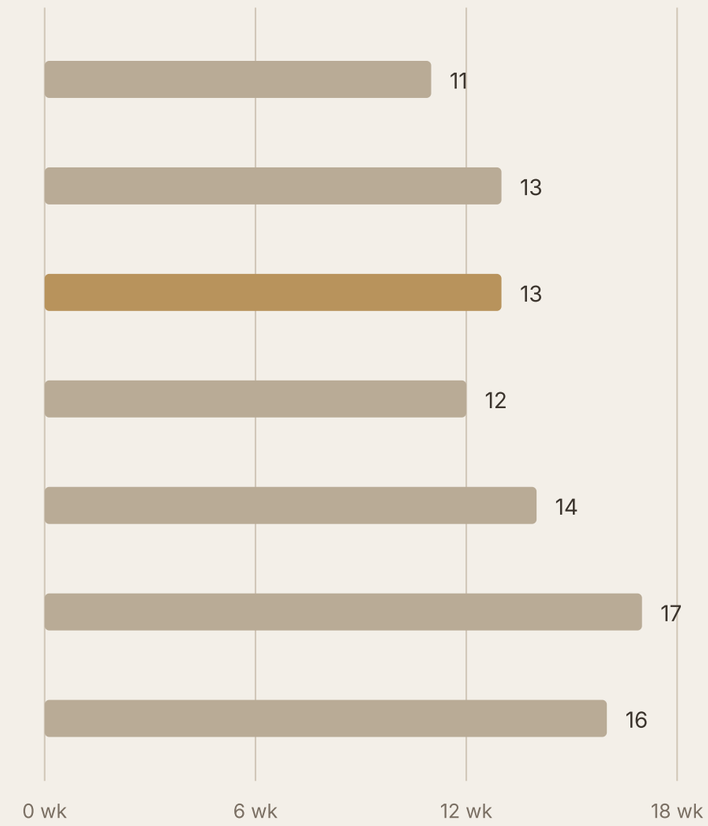

What it costs, how long it takes

Indicative furniture totals for this layout, in Canadian dollars, and the longest made-to-order lead time in each collection.

FURNITURE BUDGET, CAD · RANGE AND MIDPOINT

LONGEST LEAD TIME

Prices are typical ranges for made-to-order pieces at these sizes, before tax, delivery and installation. Covers change the price (leather adds about 55% to an upholstered piece; bouclé and velvet about 12%). AV equipment, the screen, slats, slab and lighting are separate: see Scope for trade quotes.

10 · OUR RECOMMENDATION

Warm Modern, Cinema Edit

Keep the collection that already belongs to this room, and re-cover the three surfaces the screen sees most.

1. Sectional in pewter performance weave. Darker and matte facing the screen; 100,000 double rubs; cleans with water.
2. Swivel chairs in oatmeal performance linen-look. They turn from the fire to the screen, and stay light against the black slab.
3. Charcoal tonal rug in front of the screen. Less light bouncing back from the floor in Movie scene.
4. Everything else stays Warm Modern: walnut, chestnut leather, brass, the bordered rug by the fire.

BALANCED SCORE — HIGHEST OF SEVEN	FURNITURE, INDICATIVE CAD	LONGEST LEAD TIME

IF FILMS COME FIRST	Performance Theatre — 82 with cinema priorities; power recline and the darkest surfaces.
IF YOU WANT A STATEMENT	Luxe Lounge — forest velvet and travertine; the most dramatic, and the highest budget.
IF BUDGET LEADS	Japandi — from $9,360; light and calm, but pale seats work against the screen.

12 · SCOPE FOR TRADE QUOTES

What to ask the trades

Furniture is priced from the collections. The architecture, lighting and AV should be priced by your trades, from this scope and these quantities.

TRADE	ITEM	SCOPE AND QUANTITIES	QUOTE
MILLWORK	Walnut slat wall, fireplace wall	About 10′-11″ × 7′-10″ (86 sq ft) on black felt, running across both windows; cut-out for the slab (A) or the firebox (B).
MILLWORK	Walnut slats behind the TV	7′-0″ × 7′-8″ (54 sq ft); blocking for the TV mount and a cable chase behind.
STONE	Slab surround (Option A)	82″ × 75″, honed, with a 52″ × 22″ opening; templated after the insert is set; one book-matched seam if porcelain.
ELECTRICAL	LED channels and drivers	Backlit band behind the window slats, vertical channels at both ends of the fireplace wall, alcove bulkhead cove; 2700K, high-CRI, dimmable.
ELECTRICAL	Lighting control	Five-scene keypad at the foot of the stairs; dimmable pots; step lights; 6500K bias strip on the TV circuit.
AV	Screen and projector	110″ 16:9 motorised screen in the alcove bulkhead, ceiling projector (to select), 12 V trigger, power in the bulkhead.
AV	5.1.2 pre-wire	Eight speaker locations plus subwoofer (see Sound), HDMI 2.1 conduit from console to projector and TV.

WHEN YOU ASK FOR PRICES

- ☐ Price Option A and Option B separately.
- ☐ Sequence: pre-wire and blocking before any slats or slab.
- ☐ Confirm the fireplace maker’s clearances to walnut and to the slab.
- ☐ Ask for samples: a slat section with felt, the slab finish, the LED in 2700K.

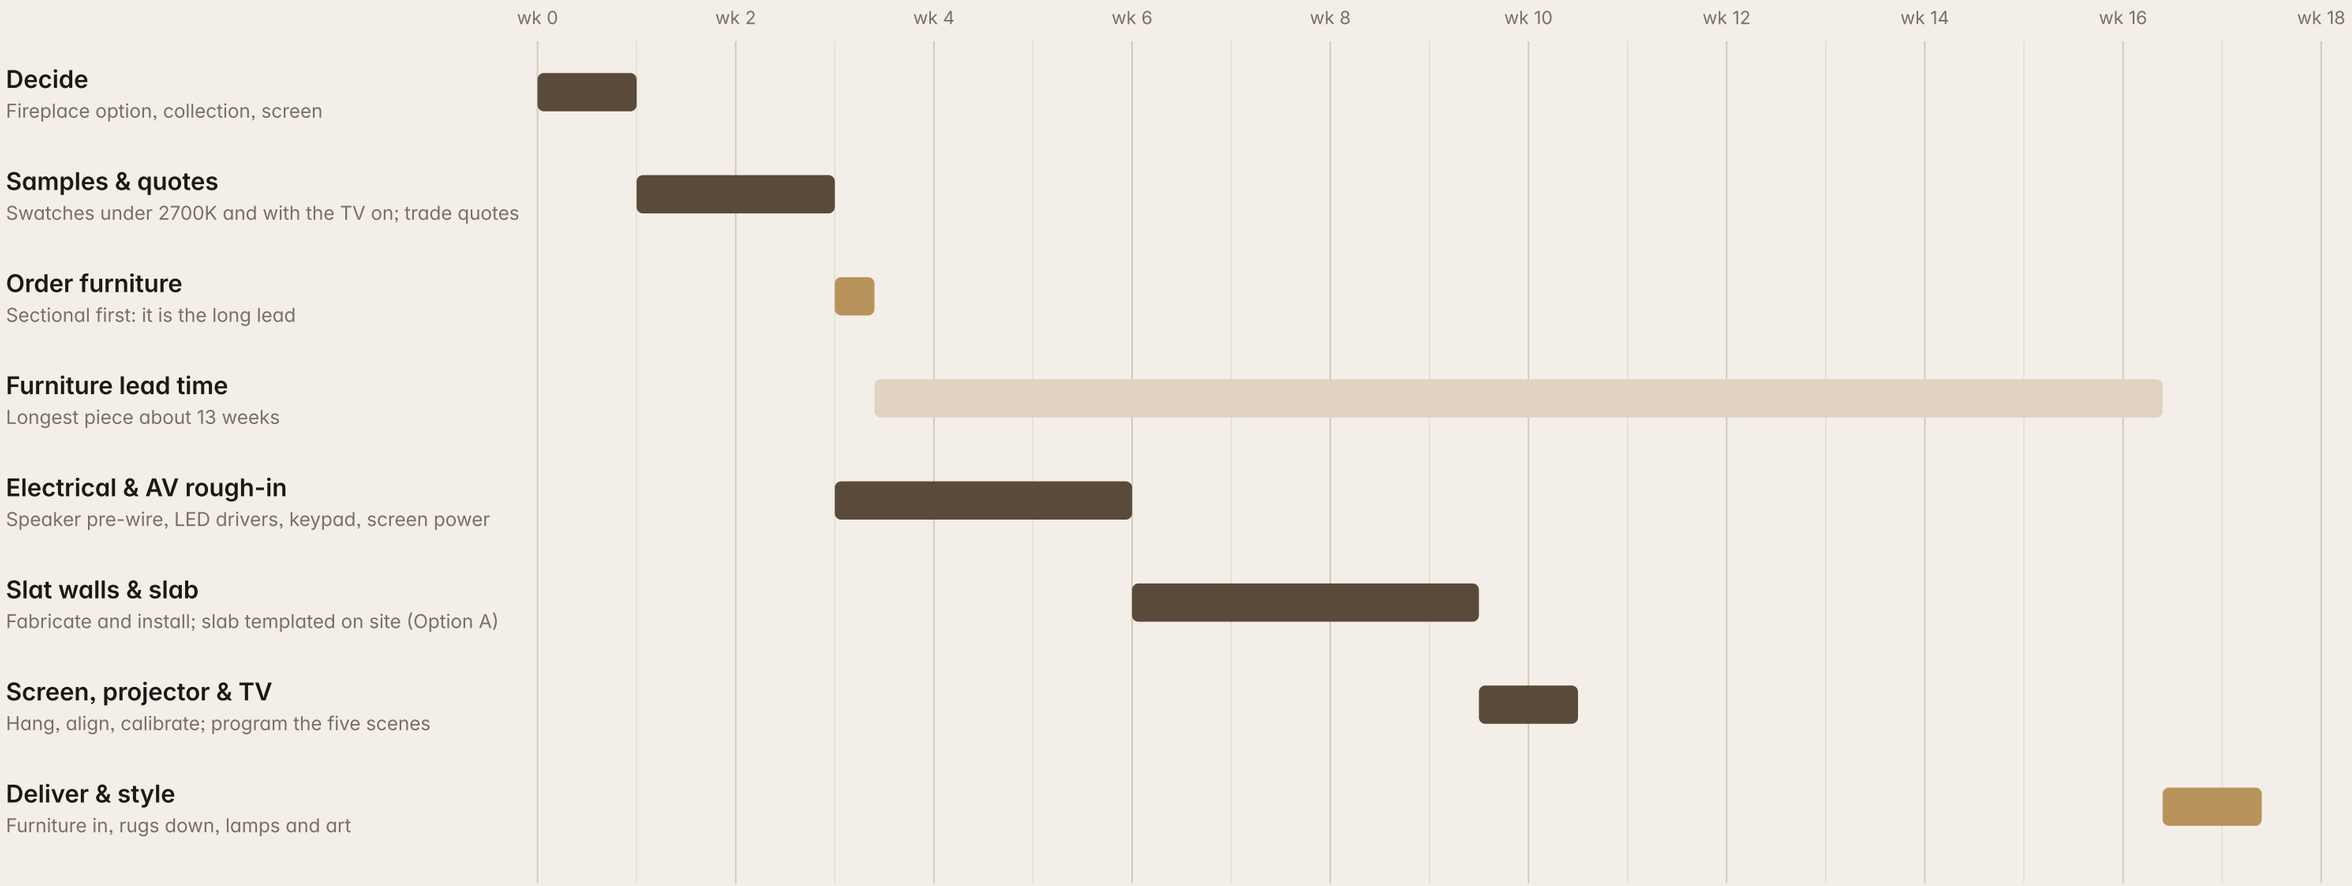

FURNITURE · CINEMA EDIT, INDICATIVE — $11,350–$21,000

About 18 weeks end to end, set by the sectional's lead time. The walls and wiring finish well before the furniture arrives.

01 Choose

Option A or B for the fireplace wall, and the collection.

02 Sample

See swatches at night under the 2700K coves and with the TV on before approving.

03 Pre-wire

Speakers, HDMI, screen power and LED drivers go in before any slats.

04 Build

Slat walls, slab, screen; then calibrate the picture and program the scenes.

APPENDIX A · HOW THE SCORES WORK

Method

Movie comfort	Seat depth, back height and recline of the main seating, plus the lounge chairs.
Screen contrast	Dark, matte furniture facing the screen bounces less light back onto it.
Acoustics	Soft upholstery and deep rugs absorb echo; leather, stone and lacquer reflect it.
Durability and care	Abrasion resistance, cleanability, and how it copes with kids and pets.
Hangout flexibility	Swivels, modules and movable seats for game nights.
Budget	Indicative furniture total for this layout: the lower the total, the higher the score.
Lead time	The longest wait among the pieces.
Fit with the room	Designer read on the walnut slat wall, dark alcove and warm lighting.

	MOVIE	SCREEN	ACOUSTICS	DURABILITY	HANGOUT	BUDGET	LEAD	FIT
Balanced	4	3	2	3	3	3	1	3
Cinema first	5	5	4	3	1	2	1	2
Hangout first	3	2	2	4	5	3	2	3
Budget first	2	1	1	2	2	5	2	1

Each criterion is scored 1–5. A total is the weighted average of the eight scores × 20. Weights run 0 (ignored) to 5 (counts most). The interactive planner recomputes everything as you change pieces or priorities.
